Peg's son James flies for an airline and was dead heading (headed for a flight but as a passenger). He noted that as an airline passenger, getting one's arm licked is rarely a good thing. When he turned around in his seat, he found a service dog was seated behind him. Guess all those years of raising dogs paid off for James.

NBC News reported recently that Purdue University, which helped fund Amelia Earhart's fatal 1937 flight, said it will send a team to a remote island in the South Pacific this fall to look for her.

Jun sent this report, "Recently, my family and I went to visit Scioto Valley 99s member Liz Poeppelman's private airfield in Versailles, Ohio to participate in her warbird restoration project. We cleaned/inspected the trim tabs and fuel tanks! It's a T6G Texan, used as an advanced trainer during WWII. Her goal is to use this T-6 to honor the Women Airforce Service Pilots (WASPs), When it's complete she'll take it to air shows and fly-ins, while dressed as a WASP!"
